Where There's a Will ...

While making year-end financial adjustments, it's a good time to think about your will. Everyone should have one, and every will should be reviewed periodically. It is peace of mind, not just a piece of paper. It gives you control over the assets you have worked to earn and lets you include favorite organizations and causes. Without a will, a probate court will distribute money to family only, according to a formula set by state law.

Please think about including the AOII Foundation in your will. You will help assure we'll always be there with top-level support for our sisters. And please let us know when you do. It helps us plan, but even more importantly, it lets us thank you and recognize your foresighted generosity with membership in our Second Century Society.

IRA Rollover Gifts

If you are 70 1/2 and have an IRA, you must take a Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) each year, whether you need it or not. The distribution is taxable as ordinary income and might affect taxation of Social Security income. If you don't need the income and want to avoid paying tax on it, request a transfer of all or part (up to $100,000) to the AOII Foundation. The transfer must be direct. If the money goes to you, even if you give it away immediately, it is taxable on your federal returns. (Check with your financial advisor for state regulations.) One reminder: You cannot deduct the contribution, because it is not counted as income. There's a secondary benefit for large donors. The income exclusion benefit applies even when you have maxed out your allowable charitable gift deduction.

Here's the information your IRA broker will need to effect the direct transfer:

Fidelity Investments
Account Name: Alpha Omicron Pi Foundation
TTC TD#: 0026
Account#: 648924822

Gifts of Highly Appreciated Securities

Do you have some securities you have held for more than a year that you would like to sell — if you wouldn't have to pay capital gains tax on the appreciation? Give them to the AOII Foundation. As with IRA rollovers, the transfer must be directly from your brokerage account to the AOII Foundation. If you sell the stock, then give the money to us, the appreciation is taxable according to Federal law. There's another benefit as well: You can deduct the full market value of the securities as a charitable gift on your Federal return. But there are limitations, so consult your tax advisor to see how this provision might affect you.

Charitable Trusts Let You Give and Get Payments

A charitable trust can make it possible to give and retain the earnings from your gift throughout your life. You will need an attorney to set up the trust. We will be happy to work with you and your counsel to arrange your support of the AOII Foundation.

Beneficiary Designations

One of the easiest ways to make a sizable investment in AOII's future is designating the AOII Foundation as the beneficiary of an insurance policy, a bank or investment account, or a retirement account. You can do it with just a little paperwork.

There's an extra benefit for designating a charity as the beneficiary of a retirement account.

Your heirs will not be taxed, as they would be if they received the proceeds of the account, even if your estate does not incur estate taxes. Consider using other assets to take care of your loved ones and dedicating the remainder of your retirement account to the AOII Foundation and other favorite causes. It's a smart and loving decision.

Important Note: Check with your financial advisor about ways to transfer assets without going through probate court. In many states, assets such as real and personal property can be transferred by signing simple authorization papers, similar to beneficiary designations.

Paid-Up Life Insurance

Have a life insurance policy that you may no longer need? Gifting it to the AOII Foundation is a low-cost way provide scholarships or educational programs for future sisters. Simply make the AOII Foundation the owner and beneficiary of your policy.
